

BLOOD TEST

BLUFF

1. - Divide yourself into pairs or threes.
2. - Look up the word your teacher has handed you out.
3. - Write a sentence using the word.
4. - Write now four "bluff" definitions.
5. - Now in turns, present your word to the class. Write it on the blackboard and pronounce it. The class must vote for the definition they think is the correct one.

The winners will be the best bluffers.

MAKING NOTES

1. - Sit in pairs and write a script to star a movie called "The Blood Sucker" you are allowed to express in your native language. This scene will show a nurse and a patient ready to be sucked with an enormous syringe and a huge needle. Write the scene in a piece of paper. You must write it in your native language because...
2. - Now, stage it while the rest of the class is making as many notes as possible in order to translate it into English.
3. - When all the couples of blood suckers are done, and all the versions translated, two mates will play the scene but just moving their lips because two other mates will dub them into English.
4. - Repeat it with another two players and two dubbing masters.
5. - All the class will now vote for the best actor or actress.

And the Oscar goes to...

TO COME DOWN

TO GIVE UP

TO JEOPARDIZE

TO PRICK

TO CLEANSE
